Sorority Mission Statement

To inspire the highest type of womanhood.

Truly an Honor

hen an organization's mission statement changes, it's a big deal – so International Council did not approach such a project lightly.

In the mid-1990s, a major effort was launched to develop the Sorority's first official mission statement. A special team worked under the "Future Visions" umbrella to assimilate input from the membership into what would stand as our Sorority's mission statement for 17 years. At that time, it was acceptable to set forth multiple concepts into a rather lengthy statement.

Today, effective mission statements are quite simple and do not include how the organization expects to meet it. Boards are encouraged to design mission statements that "fit on a T-shirt." Expert Peter Drucker says, "A mission cannot be impersonal; it has to have deep meaning, be something you believe in — something you know is right." Disney's "To make people happy" and Mary Kay's "To give unlimited opportunity to women" are great examples that inspired the current International Council to create something all Gamma Phi Betas could easily embrace and articulate — something personal, something we believe in and know to be right.

After wrestling for nearly a year with various concepts at every meeting, on virtually every conference call and in a zillion emails, International Council voted on the final wording for Gamma Phi Beta's new mission statement at our June meeting. We also finalized the accompanying vision statement and guiding principles. (See pages 18-19.) The vote to adopt this important package was unanimous, and some of us were moved to tears. We certainly hope you like it.

I have worked on many teams both within Gamma Phi Beta and in other areas of my life. But I have never been a part of anything as far-reaching and truly historic as creating an organization's mission statement. What an awesome responsibility! And what an incredible honor to take these steps with our current International Council.

As my predecessor so aptly puts it, "It's a great day to be a Gamma Phi Beta!" And Gamma Phi Beta is certainly on the GO!

In IIKE,

Linda Lyons Malony
International President

Careers in Flux

(Summer 2011) I really like that The Crescent not only tells me what's happening across the country in Gamma Phi, but also how to better myself and make it easier to get a job when I graduate. -Alyssa Dillon (Nebraska-Kearney)

The article about jobs really hit home. I just stopped teaching after 12 years and bought my own business. I loved teaching, but I really love owning my own business. It was the biggest decision I've ever had to make but, at 33, I'm too young to not absolutely love what I do. -Errin Paddock Mendibles (Northern Arizona)

I absolutely loved this article! I am currently a graduate student and every day I feel the need to reinvent myself. For the life of me, I cannot figure out what I want to be when I grow up! It was great reading about other sisters overcoming challenges and making the best of their situations. Through this article I've learned that it's OK to explore and find what it is you love. You never know where life will take you. -Tiana Richardson (San Diego State)

Bonjour

Genevieve Chong (Pepperdine) and I were both working at the prestigious American Pavilion at the Cannes Film Festival in France, and I was absolutely tickled pink (as well as brown and mode) to see a Gamma Phi sticker on her laptop one afternoon. We were friendly before, but it undoubtedly brought us even closer. It is absolutely wonderful to know my sisters are proactively pursuing careers in cinema, and I loved meeting a fellow sister halfway across the world! -Elexa Nash Dixon (Southern California)

Community Impact

On behalf of the award-winning scientists at Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, I thank members at the University of Washington

[Lambda Chapter] for raising $2,729 for cancer research. The Hutchinson Center is extremely fortunate to have talented and smart young women from Gamma Phi Beta representing our organization in the community. -Jennifer Pawlosky, director of development marketing

Honoring Founders Day 2011

ertainly, the experience of being in a Sorority is unique for each member. No matter what prompted you to participate in recruitment as a college woman or to join as an alumna initiate, being a Gamma Phi Beta is a reason to be proud – proud that you are connected to a sisterhood that values Love, Labor, Learning and Loyalty.

In honor of Founders Day, it's appropriate to reflect on our Sorority experiences and be thankful for the friendships and support, as well as the life lessons we've learned. Our members share their thoughts about how Gamma Phi Beta has impacted them, with all due respect to Mary A. Bingham, E. Adeline Curtis, Helen M. Dodge and Frances E. Haven (all of Syracuse).

You're Never Far from a Sister

By Rebecca Dietzen (California-Santa Barbara)

In 2009, I began co-chairing a subcommittee of the Women Lawyers of Sacramento with a fellow female attorney named Amy. In addition to making a difference in our community, we had the opportunity to become friends.

Although we practice in different areas and are in different stages of our careers, Amy and I relate as working mothers in private practice. We have been a friendly ear to each other as we navigate challenges such as changing law firms. Transitions are always made easier with the support of other women, as we all experienced during our time as collegiate Gamma Phi Betas.

Imagine our surprise when, over a year into our relationship, we discovered we are both Gamma Phi Betas! No wonder we connected! We quickly realized that we are also chapter sisters of Delta Psi Chapter (California-Santa Barbara). Amy Heavey Halloran (California-Santa Barbara) was a collegian in the late '80s, and she related how the chapter lost its rented home to Sigma Nu and relocated to the current house. I (class of 2001) shared more recent changes at the chapter house—like no more swimming pool! We also reconnected with Delta Psi's fantastic chapter advisor, Lois Kirchner Abbott (San Jose State), who has faithfully served the chapter for its 28 years of existence.

I thank the Sorority for providing us with an opportunity to connect at a different level and also for helping shape us as women.

SHORT AND SWEET LESSONS FROM FOB

Be Yourself

I have only been a Gamma Phi for a year and within that time my whole life has changed. With sisters supporting me, I feel like anything is possible. The best thing I have learned from Gamma Phi is to always be the person you dream to be. – Brennan Taylor (Midwestern State)

Get Involved

It's never too late. As an alumna initiate, it was amazing to be enfolded in this sisterhood, to have my talents and passions valued and celebrated, to be a vital entity in other's lives, to give and receive such love and compassion. It's never too late to live! – Kathy Gleason (Rochester)

Be Positive

Gamma Phi Beta taught me that whenever you find yourself debating an idea, always end on a positive note. Give the other person the credit they deserve and try your best to see both sides of the situation. This ensures fairness and you won't upset those who may feel differently. – Liz Tanner (Southern Methodist)

Be Respectful

Gamma Phi Beta has taught me to be a woman. It has taught me to budget and to treat my loved ones with the respect they deserve. I would not be who I am without Gamma Phi Beta. – Felicia Nunez (Texas Wesleyan), chapter recruitment chair

Have Confidence

I learned how to meet new people and make a real connection. I learned how to be a leader by following. I learned how to be a sister when I grew up with only brothers. I learned my Sorority is so much more than my four years of university.

- Susan Foulk Reeves (Texas-Austin)

Now Accepting Nominations

Get involved in the international elections process

By Julie Dunn Eichenberg (Florida State), Nominating Committee chairwoman

ome people lead and some people follow, and effective organizations need both to be successful. At Convention 2012 in Denver, elections will be held to fill the offices of International Council and the 2012-14 Nominating Committee. Whether you plan to attend Convention or not, you can make a difference in Gamma Phi Beta's success by suggesting qualified candidates for these key roles. Our achievements and respected position in the fraternal world directly relates to the quality of our leadership. And as a member-driven organization. our leadership is a direct result of its members' participation in the election process.

Your Role

Any collegiate or alumna member may obtain a Candidate Prospect Form (#47e) from the Sorority website - gammaphibeta.org. This is your way of identifying a potential leader and recommending her for an elected position. Forms are due by December 15, 2011.

To be eligible to serve on International Council or the Nominating Committee, a member must be in good standing and must have attended an International Convention in the past 10 years. In addition, those being considered for election to the Nominating Committee must also not hold another international office at the time of service

Nominating Committee's Role

Before the Nominating Committee meets in Denver (February 24-26, 2012), committee members will review the information and comments submitted by our members. At the meeting, the six alumnae and two collegians on the committee will determine the slate for consideration by the Convention body.

Submit your Candidate Prospect forms to Julie by December 15.

One alumna will be slated for each International Council position. The slate for the Nominating Committee will consist of two alumnae from each of six geographical areas - now called districts. (See the map below.)

Convention Delegate's Role

The Convention delegation formally elects Gamma Phi Beta's International Council and the successive Nominating Committee for service in the 2012-14 biennium. Each collegiate and alumnae chapter delegate will vote for the Nominating Committee candidates from the district where her chapter is located.

Everyone can contribute to Gamma Phi Beta's success by getting involved in the process. Submit a Candidate Prospect Form today!

Candidate Prospect Forms are due by December 15, 2011, to: Julie Dunn Eichenberg Nominating Committee Chairwoman 2748 Arbor Springs Trace, Tucker, GA 30084 Nominatingchairwoman@gammaphibeta.org

Volunteers Gear Up for New Year

By Elizabeth Smith Clark (Southern Methodist), sorority coordinator-research and design

eveloping capable and confident leaders is a goal of Gamma Phi Beta, and at the 2011 Leadership Development Institute (LDI) last summer, more than 120 Sorority volunteers benefited from a weekend of intense training. Of course, it wouldn't be a Gamma Phi Beta conference without a lot of fun and laughter in the mix, as well!

"LDI was all about learning and connecting," says Betsie Mayes Reynolds (Chapman), regional coordinator-advisors for region 6. "Bonding with my new team was fantastic and reconnecting with chapter sisters and old friends made the weekend a blast!"

LDI exists to provide the knowledge, skills and motivation for our volunteer leader team to move the Sorority forward as they work closely with our collegiate and alumnae members.

The weekend kicked off Thursday evening with a Welcome Dinner, Opening Session and networking opportunities. On Friday, attendees heard department reports and regional overviews, as well as an explanation of the new chapter support structure and Gamma Phi Beta's innovative and groundbreaking Safety and Wellness program. Training sessions continued Saturday, focusing on team dynamics, presentation tips and Gamma Phi Beta resources.

All this led to the Hoedown at the Crescent Corral, a western-style dinner hosted by the alumnae department and a favorite of many attendees. LDI 2011 wrapped up Sunday morning with some additional training and team goal setting.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to get our international volunteer leaders together for management training, personal development, cross-department/team collaborations and fun," International President Linda Lyons Malony (Southern California) says. "It was a high priority for International Council to host this important conference. We hoped to both motivate and educate our volunteers so we can all make the greatest impact possible this coming year. Our chapters and members will be better served."

LDI was held June 23-26, 2011, outside Phoenix, Arizona, at the beautiful Scottsdale Fairmont Princess resort.

Yee-Haw Volunteer leaders Julie Pawelczyk (Illinois at Urbana-Champaign), sorority director-government relations, and Elizabeth Smith Clark cowgirl up at LDI's Hoedown at the Crescent Corral after a full weekend of leadership development.

Introducing some cool licensed vendors!

ur official licensed vendors work as partners with the Sorority to offer valuable services to our members with an additional benefit to Gamma Phi Beta. As a nonprofit organization, we rely on these partnerships, along with member dues and other revenue sources, to fund many of the essential programs our collegians and alumnae enjoy and deserve.

Here is a small example of the services available to you as a Gamma Phi Beta member.

Everyone with a car needs car insurance, right? Each time a Gamma Phi Beta switches to GEICO (geico.com) for auto insurance and indicates she belongs to the Sorority, Gamma Phi Beta receives a donation toward our operating budget.

Textbooks

No college student can get through school without textbooks, so check out textbookpartners.com. You can rent or buy discounted books for your undergraduate or graduate education while benefiting the Sorority and helping you avoid the long lines at the campus bookstore!

Photography

Collegiate chapters regularly hire photographers for the annual member and composite photo as well as for special events like formals and Bid Day. Our website lists several options for reliable companies that will ensure a professional product and experience.

Using licensed vendors is the only legal way to purchase merchandise bearing our insignia (Greek letters, name, crest and other trademarks). Be sure to look for the Greek Licensed Product seal to ensure your item has been approved by Gamma Phi Beta.

With more than 200 licensed vendors offering a wide variety of products and services, Gamma Phi Beta makes it simple to do business. For a complete list of available items, visit our website, gammaphibeta.org under the About tab.

For more information on getting your favorite vendor or campus bookstore approved and licensed, contact vendors@greeklicensing.com or call 607.753.6284.

Sparkle and Shine

Alumna makes dreams come true for at-risk girls

emember your high school prom and the excitement of choosing a gorgeous dress for that all-important dinner and dance with a special date or group of friends? For hundreds of disadvantaged girls in Cincinnati, Brynne Farmer Coletti (Miami-Ohio) and a large army of volunteers make it possible for them to find the perfect gown - for free.

The mother of four with a heart of gold started a nonprofit business, Kenzie's CLOSET®, in 2006 to make sure every girl can shine at prom. Gently used dresses, shawls, handbags, shoes and jewelry complete the fantasy for those in financial need, including foster children and even homeless teens - 1,814 young ladies to date. Brynne tells us more about her passion for building self esteem in girls during an interview with The Crescent.

Why is it important for girls to have this opportunity?

Kenzie's CLOSET offers young girls the opportunity to dream, to have a "forever memory" of one special night in spite of their difficult circumstances. They receive more than a dress. They receive a sense of confidence and belonging, a personal power and impact - these are moments and experiences that might be a normal part of life for many other teens.

We show these girls that someone cares about them. We treat them as our honored guests to show them possibilities and excite them about the future. Our diverse group of volunteers demonstrates that no matter their age, occupation or education, a strong group of women working together can accomplish mighty things.

Describe the shopping experience from the moment a girl walks through your door.

We invite 40 junior and senior high school girls on each of 15 shopping days during our prom season, which runs from February to April. As each girl arrives, she is paired with her own personal shopper (also called her "fairy godmother") who helps select the perfect prom outfit. Our onsite seamstresses make alterations. Each girl has a photo taken in her prom attire and leaves with her photo, new dress and accessories, a pink rose, a new memory and a smile.

Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Dhani Jones sports the bowtie he designed to support Kenzie's CLOSET during a February appearance with Brynne Coletti.

Have you helped anyone whom you'll never forget?

There was one young lady who is affected with Down's Syndrome - Marionna. She chose a full-skirted beautiful, fairy-like yellow dress and when her outfit was complete, she twirled around proclaiming she felt just like Belle, the main character in the Disney movie "Beauty and the Beast." There wasn't a dry eye in the room.

And two years ago we invited girls who were part of military families to a private shopping day. The impact of their financial circumstances plus the added worry for the safety of their loved ones was again, very heartwarming.

Brynne is currently conducting a dress drive to stock up for spring proms and formals. If you have a gently used formal gown of any size and/or accessories to donate (tax deductible), please visit kenziescloset.org and click To Donate. Information on volunteering in the Cincinnati area is also available. And on Facebook, be a fan of Kenzie's CLOSET.

Looking for Shining Seniors

's there an outstanding senior member who shines for Gamma Phi Beta in your chapter? The Crescent wants to highlight one amazing senior from each of our eight regions in the winter issue. But we need your help to find these wonderful women! To nominate a shining senior, email TheCrescent@gammaphibeta.org and tell us the sister's name, major, future goals and just what makes her stand out from the crowd. Nominations are due November 15, so don't wait!

We're looking for shining seniors to feature in the winter issue - nominate someone from your chapter today! Pictured: 2011 graduates from Delta Lambda Chapter (California-Riverside).

Looking for the perfect job after graduation? Apply to be a collegiate leadership consultant (CLC) and put your Gamma Phi Beta experience to work!

Each year, the Sorority hires a team of recent graduates to visit and empower our collegiate chapters throughout North America. One former CLC says, "There is nothing like being a collegiate leadership consultant. You get to connect with sisters, impact an organization that has done so much for you and shine personally and professionally as you develop. This will be the best opportunity you will ever have. Do not miss out on something that will change your life forever."

These professional positions provide a unique blend of challenge and satisfaction that prepares CLCs for careers in the corporate world, higher education, nonprofit management, law and many other fields. The search is on for the women who will be our 2012-13 CLCs; if you're interested, apply now!

Life on the Road

Our 2010-11 CLCs crisscrossed the continent by plane, train and automobile, making unforgettable memories along the way. On average, here's what each experienced during her nine months on the road.

States visited: 15 Flights taken: 48 Chapter visits made: 18 Recruitments attended: 8 Caffeine runs made per week: 11 Gamma Phi Beta T-shirts collected: 13 Lifelong friends made: Countless

Greek in the UK

Members living in Great Britain share sisterhood moments

Similar

values draw

Panhellenic

women together

f you were all alone in a foreign country, who would you reach out to for support? Sisters, of course. And for many of our members residing in the United Kingdom (UK), their definition of "sisters" includes the Panhellenic community as they proudly join with women of all letters to stay involved with Greek life abroad.

In fact, it was exactly the need for female friendships that led Judith Watson Keene (Vermont) to contact Panhellenic 50 years ago when she was the new girl in town. Married to a Brit, Judith found familiarity among other expatriates with sorority backgrounds. The hospitality and support of this sisterhood helped her make the transition into European culture.

"I moved to England with great reservations," Judith says. "I left family and friends behind but had great faith that the man was right for me and with his help I would cope. I knew no one and took one step at a time. I found the English friendly but reserved, curious but reserved, kind but reserved."

The Panhellenic environment was just the remedy for Judith's homesickness. "In those days I travelled to London for meetings, made good friends there and served as president of Panhellenic UK in the early to mid '60s," she recalls.

While Judith visits the city less frequently and her involvement in Panhellenic has waned, the friendships made in those early years endure, and she maintains her membership with the London group.

Nancy Lee (Boston) is not only active in the UK Panhellenic, she stays in touch with other Gamma Phi Beta sisters living abroad.

> Since moving to Europe in 2008, Nancy has become even closer with Valerie Lenski Xiberras (Boston), also a resident of the UK, who recruited Nancy in college. "We connected immediately and though I do not see her enough due to our crossed schedules, we share an inherent familiarity and strong friendship," Nancy says.

Valerie also appreciates the nonjudgmental support her sisters offer. "I would encourage our daughters to join Greek life as that type of unconditional friendship is rare in these frantically busy times," she says.

Michelle Ericsson (California-Santa Cruz) travels back and forth across the "pond" in her work as an international DJ, and enjoys sisterhood on both continents.

"Being Greek is something that definitely stays with you," she believes. "It is a fantastic way of keeping in touch and it is nice to know that no matter where you are > in the world, you're never too far away from your sisters."

> The moral of the story: Wherever you go, you're likely to meet another sister, whether she wears Gamma Phi Beta letters or is affiliated with another Panhellenic organization. Similar values and experiences draw us together and enhance our personal lives exponentially.

Thanks to Sandy Biegelman Burba (Miami-Ohio) for this amazing story idea! Got something to share? Contact The Crescent (agammaphibeta.org today!

a Mission to #### International Council makes historic decision to refresh key Sorority phrases

ollowing almost a year of research and discussion, International Council proudly announces the newly-adopted Gamma Phi Beta mission statement: "To inspire the highest type of womanhood." According to International President Linda Lyons Malony (Southern California), the goal of revising the Sorority mission statement was to preserve the history of the organization while ensuring its relevance for today's member and pointing the way to Gamma Phi

"Our past leaders celebrated the same values we do today when they crafted the former mission statement in 1994," Linda explains. "It was what we needed at the time to guide our organization and give us purpose and direction. With this updated wording, we are not changing direction in any way. Instead, we've made it easier for every member to articulate what Gamma Phi Beta represents and how we want to be perceived as an organization."

The new statement is visibly shorter and easily memorized. The phrase "highest type of womanhood" is prominent in the Sorority's Articles of Incorporation and used throughout the sisterhood to convey the idea of members striving for their personal best.

Keeping the statement simple, however, was perhaps the hardest part.

MISSION

To foster a nurturing environment that provides women the opportunity to achieve their potential through life-long commitment to intellectual growth, individual worth and service to humanity.

Now:

To inspire the highest type of womanhood.

VISION

Then:

Gamma Phi Beta will be recognized among peer associations as a premier women's organization exhibited by:

- 1. Developing campus and community volunteers and eaders
- 2. Providing innovative programming which addresses issues relevant to women and society
- 3. Strengthening our resources
- 4. Managing the organization through volunteerism

Now:

We will build confident women of character who celebrate sisterhood and make a difference in the world around us.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Then: Values

- Wise stewardship of Sorority resources
- Moral and ethical integrity in all aspects of life
- Consistent, clear and timely communication
- Our tradition of excellence, rich history and treasured ritual
- Individuality
- Long-term involvement
- Strategic planning and collaboration

Now:

- · We promote lifelong commitment, intellectual and personal growth and service to humanity.
- We perpetuate our heritage as we commit to the growth of our Sorority.
- We foster enduring friendships.
- We advocate ethical behavior, respect, authenticity, accountability and integrity.
- · We aspire to excellence in all that we do

Inspire

Our vision: We will build confident women of character who celebrate sisterhood and make a difference in the world around us. Pictured: Members of Xi Chapter (Idaho).

"We struggled with the wording quite a bit," Linda admits. "We wanted the statement to be brief but still express our values and ideals. After recognizing that 'inspire' and 'highest type of womanhood' were words all members could own, the light bulb came on and we all agreed, 'This makes sense."

The process involved in reworking the mission statement was thoughtful and strategic. Council members began examining the issue at a planning meeting in August 2010. After nearly a year of carefully studying work from the 1990s and meeting with an outside consultant, all voted affirmatively to adopt the phrasing in June during a Council meeting at the Sorority's Leadership Development Institute.

"We simply went back to our roots and the intention of our Four Founders," says Membership Vice President J.J. Kaelin (Colorado-Boulder). "The mission statement considers their expectation of the future of Gamma Phi Beta as well as what they valued, what we value today and our purpose of existence. We kept coming back to inspiring women to be greater than they knew they could be."

The Sorority vision has also been modified into a succinct but powerful statement of intent: "We will build confident women of character who celebrate sisterhood and make a difference in the world around us." It expresses how our leadership anticipates our membership will look in the future and what the Sorority will strive to achieve.

"These are powerful phrases that honor our heritage as well as outline expectations for all members."

- Linda Malony

"From a recruitment perspective, the vision really wraps it up for us," J.J. says. "It's everything about who we are based on our Core Values and standards of membership." And finally, International Council revised previous values statements into a set of guiding principles.

- · We promote lifelong commitment, intellectual and personal growth and service to humanity.
- · We perpetuate our heritage as we commit to the growth of our Sorority.
- · We foster enduring friendships.
- · We advocate ethical behavior, respect, authenticity, accountability and integrity.
- · We aspire to excellence in all that we do.

"These are the fundamentals for our decision-making as an organization," says Financial Vice President Leigh Ann Price (Texas Tech). "Nothing we do will be detrimental to advocating ethical behavior, for example."

Once again, the process of determining the guiding principles was a collaborative work that evolved from numerous philosophical discussions. "Incorporating specific phrases from the earlier mission statement into our guiding principles was important to us," Linda says. "These are powerful phrases that honor our heritage as well as outline expectations for all members, not only international leadership."

Panhellenic Affairs Vice President Betty Ahlemeyer Quick (Indiana) has a unique point of view after participating in mission, vision and values statement discussions both in the 1990s and this past year.

"I was pleased to know the aspects of our previous mission that are outward-focused were retained through the new vision statement and guiding principles," Betty says. "Phrases such as 'make a difference in the world around us,' 'foster enduring friendships' and 'excellence in all we do' represent a broader focus that includes our relationships with interfraternal groups as well as our philanthropic partners."

While the work was difficult, it was important to tackle and will have far-reaching and long-lasting influence. By embracing the call to inspire the highest type of womanhood, our members will continue to connect, impact and shine in ways that will promote the best of Gamma Phi Beta now and in the future.

SPECIAL FOUNDERS

Peanuts and Olives

My mother [Marian Doty Bickford, Pennsylvania State1 and I are sisters in Gamma Phi. A few vears back, the local alumnae group was quite small, but she and I always commemorated

Founders Day together and one year I invited her to a Chinese restaurant for lunch. Ahead of time, I made special arrangements for our date. After a very pleasant meal, my mother was served peanuts and olives instead of a fortune cookie. much to her surprise. Even now, it is one Founders Day that stands out from the others. -Amelia Stewart Bickford Tower (Vermont)

A Sister to the End I called Lynda Middendorf Cast (Illinois at Urbana-Champaign) this summer to see if she wanted to accept her 50-year pin at Founders Day. She said her mind is unlikely to hold out until then because she has Alzheimer's disease. Instead, I took the pin to her. To my surprise, she opened the door and launched right into Ritual.

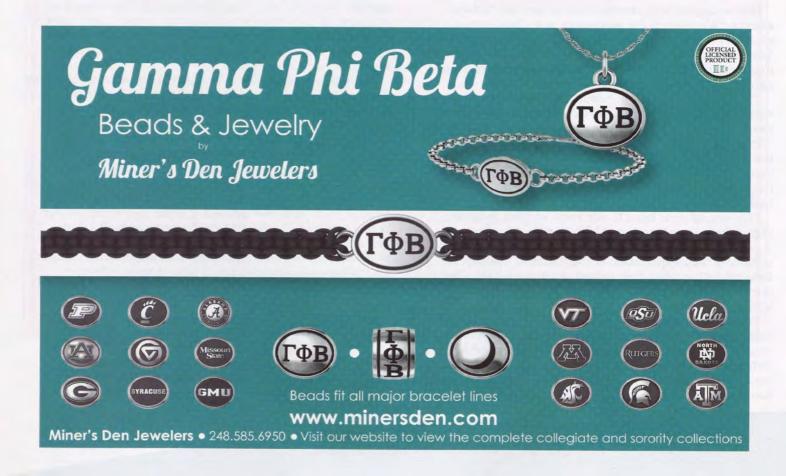

There are some things we never forget! We had a lovely long chat about our collegiate years. We are staying in touch and Portland Alumnae Chapter will give her special recognition at our Founders Day in November. - Christine Carney Kidwell (Oregon), president of Portland Alumnae Chapter

Home Sweet Home Founders Day was very special for me in college because my chapter always went to Molly Molden Miller's (Kansas) home for a wonderful Sunday afternoon with alumnae who would bring us food! In college, any homemade dish was a treasure. I'll never forget making the Loyalty Circle with young and old hands standing together as a sisterhood. - Jennifer L. Rone (Jacksonville)

Legacy Love Last fall, I had the privilege of attending Founders Day at the Omega Chapter (lowa State) house with my grandma and legacy maker, Ila Haige Logan (Iowa State). As the chapter advisor, I spend much time telling our collegians about the impact our Sorority has over our lifetime. so it was nice for them to meet someone who embodies the Gamma Phi Beta spirit. That day I truly felt part of something much larger than myself. - Jill Kuebler Hoaksion (lowa State)

Football Player

Alumna Renee Rodak (Southern Indiana) leads a dual life. By day, she gently works with the elderly as a rehabilitation and occupational therapist; by night she dons uniform number 87 to play tackle football in the Independent Women's Football League.

"I love the competition and the fact that football is not traditionally a woman's sport," says Renee, a member of the Seattle Majestics since 2007. Although she plays a variety of positions on the team, Renee loves the adrenaline rush of defense.

"Offense is all about strategy, planning and memorizing plays," Renee says. "Defense is more reactive and based on gut instinct. It's more fun."

Especially when your team wins the national championship, as the Majestics did in July. "During the game I sacked the quarterback — it was the most solid hit I've put on someone in four years!" she exclaims. "I can't describe the feeling of winning this game. It's surreal and I'm so proud of my team — we pulled together and played our hearts out. I truly feel like I left everything on that field, and to bring home a championship is amazing!"

Olympic Windsurfer

It's fitting that alumna Nikola Girke (British Columbia) received her bachelor's degree in human kinetics, or the study of physical activity. A twotime Olympic competitor, she is now in training for the 2012 Games in London as a world-class windsurfer.

Nikola is one of only a few athletes to compete in two different sports at the Olympic Games, according to her Facebook profile. Introduced to sailing at age 9 during summer camp, Nikola embraced the sport. In 2001, she was recruited to sail for Canada in the 2004 Athens Olympics.

"It's a great honour to represent Canada," she says. "To inspire people - kids, teens, adults, other athletes, anyone really - is huge. I believe in dreams and going for them."

Always up for a challenge, Nikola later set her sights on qualifying for Beijing in 2008 as a windsurfer. She self-trained until three months before the Games.

"Learning a completely new sport was daunting and many people didn't believe in me," she remembers. "I had to rely on myself and believe in myself more than ever. I worked relentlessly and, against many odds, qualified myself for the Games. I placed 17th in Beijing, and it was a feeling of accomplishment like no other."

Windsurfing is a tremendously challenging sport that requires both physical and mental strength. "There are light, medium and heavy wind conditions, each of which requires completely different physical techniques," Nikola says. "Couple that with coordinating tactics and strategy; then there is the element of keeping the equipment fine tuned while competing in 11 races within a week. It's quite demanding."

Currently, Nikola is competing in the Pan American Games in Mexico (October 17-23) before beginning the qualification rounds for London. She's considered an "underdog," but don't underestimate her tenacious attitude.

"I'm determined, disciplined and diligent, and I plug away at my weaknesses," she says. "I am a coachable athlete who stays positive and works hard."

Special thanks to Marina Walker (British Columbia) for sending Nikola our way.

Volleyball Player

At Christopher Newport University, members at Epsilon Iota Chapter know where junior Cory Harris (Christopher Newport) can be found. An outside hitter on the school's volleyball team, Cory practices every day for two hours in the gym, lifts weights three days per week for an hour at a time and travels to matches most weekends.

"My sisters know I came to school here because I was recruited to play volleyball," says Cory, a communications major. "There's never been a conflict with my sports schedule; we have a mutual understanding."

Since first playing in eighth grade, Cory has steadily improved her skills and proudly helped her college team advance to the Elite 8 in both her freshman and sophomore years at Christopher Newport; it was the team's best finish in more than 10 years.

Her coach, Lindsay Birch, calls Cory a leader who sets a positive tone for the team. "Cory has spunk – she has a lot of spirit," she says. "She always has a smile on her face. Whether it's a good game, a bad game, the bus ride or practices, Cory enjoys all the experiences of being a volleyball player."

Athletically, Cory's ball control is her biggest strength, according to Coach Birch. "She's a player we can trust to not make a lot of mistakes on the court."

Cory entered college intending to play volleyball, but unsure about sorority life. She now says, "I love being a student athlete and being in Gamma Phi Beta. It's worked out perfectly for me." Special thanks to Kat Miller-Cvilikas (Christopher Newport) for sending Cory our way.

Equestrian Vaulter

What do you get when you cross a gymnast, dancer and equestrian? You get sophomore Ling Beisecker (William & Mary), a competitive equestrian vaulter.

Equestrian vaulting requires the athlete to perform choreographed gymnastics exercises on the back of a moving horse while being judged on the routine's composition and difficulty. The vaulter is rated on her performance, and even the horse gets a score for the quality of its gait. It's not an easy sport to master, Ling says.

"Vaulters need dedication and a willingness to keep trying. When I started at age 5, I did lots of floor work to build balance and perfect the movements before moving the drill to the horse. It takes a long time to get better."

Now she travels all over the world competing for China, where she was born. Ling became the first athlete to compete for the country at the World

Equestrian Games in 2010, one of the premier competitions for her sport. She is also one of only about 30 vaulters to earn the highest honor in American vaulting, the gold medal — an accomplishment she achieved with commendation on her first try last year.

For Ling, the sport is a true family activity. She is coached by her mom, and her father is the "lunger" during competitions — he controls the horse's movements from the center of the performance ring. She also practiced with two older sisters who were vaulters as well.

"I love the community feel of vaulting — it reminds me of the Sorority," she says. "If something happens to your horse, someone will let you borrow hers. No one wants to see you fail."

That supportive environment helped Ling overcome extreme stage fright and allows her to perform confidently. "I used to be really nervous in any type performance situation," she explains. "I realized that if I'm having fun performing, people will have fun watching me. Vaulting has given me selfconfidence that transfers into my social life, academics and relationships."

It also inspired her to become a sports psychologist and help others with similar performance anxiety. To reach her goal, Ling is a double major studying kinesiology and psychology.

Special thanks to Katie Danner (William & Mary) for sending Ling our way.

Equestrian

Some athletes cultivate agility, speed or strength to compete, but what equestrians need most is confidence, says Emily Messing (Colgate), captain of Colgate University's equestrian team.

"The horse has a mind of his own, but he listens to you and he's waiting for you to make a move," she explains. "You can't second guess yourself as you approach a fence; you have to follow through with your decision, whether it was a good one or a bad one."

Colgate keeps horses at a nearby barn for team practices and to lend to visiting teams. For away meets, the team doesn't travel with Colgate's horses; instead they borrow animals from the host school's stables. The host institution also designs the course and riders are not allowed to practice on it before the competition starts.

"My favorite event is jumping," says Emily, who began riding at age 8. "It's more of a challenge because the course and horse are new and we get one shot at it." Riders are judged on position and how well they work with the horse. The ideal ride looks effortless on both the rider and horse's part.

Training throughout the week and competing on weekends leave little room for Emily, a senior studying biology, to slack off on her school work. "Before a big meet, I'll usually see my teammates in the library trying to stay ahead on assignments," she says. "For student athletes, managing our time is the biggest challenge."

Ironman Triathlete

Starting in January, senior Jennifer Yearsley (Idaho) will spend 20 hours a week on her feet, on her bike and in the water to train as an Ironman triathlete.

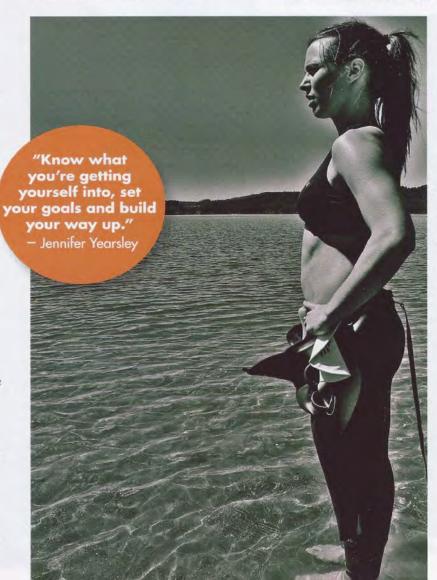

Ironman competitors swim 2.4 miles, cycle 112 miles and run a full marathon (26.2 miles) within 17 hours. It's a grueling day that only a rare breed of athlete can endure. With two of these extreme races under her belt, Jennifer's not slowing down.

"In my last race, there were 30 women in my age group, and I placed 10th," she says. "It's not really a young person's sport; most Ironman competitors are in their 40s and male. They call it 'the mid-life crisis triathlon."

A strong swimmer and runner, Jennifer finds cycling the most challenging. But by training hard for this leg of the race, she shaved one hour and 20 minutes from her best time.

Not only does Jennifer train and compete in this high-endurance event, she has applied to be the guide for a blind Ironman athlete. To anyone considering the Ironman as a goal, Jennifer recommends starting with sprint triathlons (shorter distances) and taking up to three years to adopt the triathlete mindset and habits. "Know what you're getting yourself into, set your goals and build your way up," she advises.

Next month. Jennifer will run the origional marathon route in Greece. Photo by Amanda Mall Region 2: Epsilon Pi Chapter (George Mason) The chapter held a bake sale to support a member who was injured in the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, tornadoes. Several sisters helped with tornado relief efforts, driving a full trailer of donated items 14 hours to the affected area.

REGION 1

DELAWARE

🕰 Eta Gamma Chapter (Delaware) The chapter hosted 20 Greek organizations at a glow-inthe-dark volleyball tournament to raise $1,000 for Camp Fire USA.

Princeton Area Alumnae Chapter Members indulged in the arts at a Broadway play in New York City; a museum tour of French paintings in Philadelphia; and a visit to a collection of sculptures in New Jersey.

NEW YORK

Delta Tau Chapter (Colgate) Several members visited Madison County Children's Camp to meet 19 girls the chapter sponsored through yearlong fund-raising efforts. The memorable visit included face painting with the campers and carnival games.

Epsilon Tau Chapter (Rochester) Sisters who stayed in town for the summer attended a picnic with members of Rochester Alumnae Chapter and their families. Collegians had a fantastic time talking to and learning from alumnae.

PENNSYLVANIA

Epsilon Alpha Chapter (La Salle) Members proudly represented Gamma Phi Beta at the annual Walk Now for Autism Speaks in Philadelphia. Thousands of people come together at this event to raise awareness for the developmental disorder, autism.

QUEBEC

Alpha Tau Chapter (McGill) Sisters will hold their first Crescent Classic: Chili Cook-off this semester and are busy making plans for a successful event.

- Chicago Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter Sisters kicked off the fall meeting schedule with a late August social get together followed by a September "camp out" with food and fun for the entire family.

Disaster Prep at San Diego State

Last July, the Beta Lambda Chapter (San Diego State) house was swarming with volunteer emergency response citizens. No, there wasn't a disaster. It was a training exercise of the Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) San Diego.

CERT San Diego is a program offered by the San Diego Fire-Rescue Department that trains citizens in basic emergency response skills such as disaster preparedness, search and rescue, small fire suppression, triage, disaster medical, incident command and logistics. Along with maintaining home and family preparedness, CERT members may be called on to assist the community and the fire department in a large-scale disaster.

Because of its commitment to member safety, it was only natural that Beta Lambda House Corporation Board team up with CERT San Diego for a unique training exercise. The local North City CERT team was called to action on a Saturday morning for a surprise earthquake simulation drill at the chapter house, which was closed to members for the summer. CERT members conducted a size-up of the residence, searched all floors and "rescued" nine simulated victims placed throughout the building.

"It was a win-win for everyone," says CERT member Kelly Witt (San Diego State). "The house corporation board promoted safety in the chapter and community, while the CERT team conducted a training exercise in an outstanding facility not normally available to them. We are grateful for Gamma Phi Beta's support of this important community program."

IOWA

Omega Chapter (Iowa State) Members ranked third in grades on campus with a GPA of 3.3 and received the Fraternal Excellence Award. Two new members were also awarded the Rho Lambda Outstanding New Member of the Year award and the New Member award.

📤 Gamma Psi Chapter (Northern Iowa) While preparing for its annual kickball tournament to raise money for breast cancer awareness, the chapter also held fall recruitment events.

MINNESOTA

📤 Gamma Mu Chapter (Minnesota State-Moorhead) After a successful Crescent Classic: Spagammi Feed, the chapter donated $425 to Camp Fire USA.

📤 Minneapolis-St. Paul Alumnae Chapter Ladies recently hosted a "Monday Night Meeting" fundraiser to support Kappa Chapter (Minnesota-Twin Cities). Alumnae visited the chapter house, connected with old friends and selected repair projects at the house to fund.

NORTH DAKOTA

Alpha Beta Chapter (North Dakota) Spring recruitment was a three-day event which resulted in five new members added to the chapter.

REGION 8

BRITISH COLUMBIA

📤 Alpha Lambda Chapter (British Columbia) Last spring, the chapter hosted its annual Crescent Classic: Football Tournament to donate more than $800 to Girl Guides of Canada. As a result, five young girls attended Camp Holidaze over the summer.

CALIFORNIA

Diablo Valley Alumnae Chapter The group is engaged in building its membership via Facebook (search Diablo Valley Alumnae of Gamma Phi Beta). Members enjoyed an ice cream social and recruitment activities with Eta Chapter (California-Berkeley) and look forward to Founders Day.

IDAHO

- Mi Chapter (Idaho) Members are first in grades among the Greek community, according to the spring grade report. The chapter has placed in the top two for more than 10 consecutive semesters, and has been above the all-sorority average for 10 years.
- Greater Des Moines Alumnae Chapter Alumnae members from numerous chapters attended the chapter installation August 4. Members stay in touch on Facebook through the Greater Des Moines Alumnae Chapter of Gamma Phi Beta group. Contact ashowers08@gmail.com to join the email list.

Crescent Correspondents: See the fall officer packet for new magazine submission guidelines. The next deadline is November 1.

Philanthropy

Gamma Eta to Volunteer 1,000 Hours

In celebration of the chapter's 50th anniversary, members of Gamma Eta Chapter (California State-Long Beach) are giving 1,000 hours of volunteer time over the next several months

It's all part of a new initiative called Caring for Our Campus & Community, according to Dani O'Neill (California State-Long Beach), public relations vice president and one of the innovators of the campaign.

"We plan to brighten the lives of nonprofits, campus clubs and academic departments that work so hard to help others," she says. To accomplish the goal, each of the chapter's 100 collegians has committed to at least two projects and approximately 10 hours of her time. Alumnae have agreed to participate as well.

Members will divide their time equally between volunteer opportunities within the Long Beach community and on campus. All 50 projects will be completed by the chapter's 50th anniversary reunion in March 2012.

"I believe the celebration of every special event should somehow also benefit those less fortunate," shares Keri Gee Barnett Semmelman (California State-Long Beach), who lives this principle in her own life. "Gamma Eta's 50th anniversary is a perfect time to help others."

Philanthropy work is core to Gamma Eta Chapter, which annually hosts numerous events to raise funds for Camp Fire USA and the Long Beach Red Cross.

Rest in Peace

Gamma Phi Beta sadly reports the loss of Lanier "Leonite" Selzer Moore (Southern Methodist), former member of Grand (International) Council. Leonite died peacefully April 12, 2011, at age 73.

Initiated in 1955, Leonite was a loyal member who served on the Foundation Board of Trustees, as Convention coordinator and as Director of Collegiate Extension, a Council position in the late 1970s. She received our Merit Award in 1974 for her volunteer contributions. When asked about her friend Leonite, Karen Wander Kline's (lowa State) face virtually lights up.

"Leonite was so dynamic," says Karen, who volunteered alongside Leonite for many years. "The collegians just adored her. She was flamboyant and wonderfully funny – a friend to the end."

Leonite was a breast cancer survivor who later battled heart disease. She is remembered as a very positive person who was never a complainer, according to longtime friend Jean Leitzsey Shields (Oklahoma).

"She was gregarious, interesting and a joy to be around," Jean says. "Leonite's approach to life was contagious, and I miss her terribly."

We acknowledge the following individuals and groups who contributed to the Gamma Phi Beta Foundation in memory of a loved one (as of July 31, 2011). Deceased members' first, maiden and last names plus schools and initiation years are listed.

New Trustees Join Board

oining the leaders at Gamma Phi Beta Foundation this year are three newly-appointed Trustees. These fabulous sisters will serve in leadership roles while promoting the Foundation's objectives to provide camping experiences, financial aid and leadership

Jennifer Kurumada Chuang (California-Berkeley) owns and operates a preschool/child care center and teaches masterslevel classes in early childhood education at California State University-Los Angeles. As a Trustee, she hopes to share how being a lifetime supporter of the Foundation not only helps our members and young girls, but also society as a whole. Jennifer benefited from her Sorority experience by gaining the skills to collaborate with people of many different backgrounds to achieve a common goal. "The profound effect of the Sorority on my life is the primary reason I have volunteered my time and give financially to support the work of the Foundation," she says.

With diverse financial management experience, Phyllis Lovrien (Iowa State) has already been tapped to help oversee the Foundation's investment portfolio. She works as vice president of private wealth management for the investment firm, Robert W. Baird & Co. Her motivation to serve the Foundation comes from an appreciation for the benefits of Greek life. "Joining a social sorority is such a wonderful idea for young college women — developing friendships, learning to live with others, practicing good habits. Supporting its future for others is very satisfying," says Phyllis, adding that many of her lifelong friendships began in the Sorority decades ago.

Julie Lynn Wright (Wittenberg) retired from the American Red Cross where she was the chief public support officer. She now works as the development director for Computer C.O.R.E. Her passion is to grow campership endowments and financial aid endowments so that more sisters can have the chance to succeed in their studies. Julie still remembers the dining etiquette she learned at Alpha Nu Chapter (Wittenberg), and says, "The salt and pepper shakers always travel together!"

With Heartfelt Thanks

Change is inevitable, and with that, the Foundation wishes the following Trustees the best as they retire from the Board.

Virginia "Ginny" Harris Hammond (Colorado-Boulder) - 11 years of service: Ginny is an ardent Foundation supporter who proudly names the continued generosity of Foundation donors as the most rewarding part about working with the Foundation.

Corinne Martinez (California-Berkeley)

- Four years of service: Corinne actively served on the public relations/marketing committee, and has been a member of The 1874 Society for 13 years. Among her many generous gifts to the Foundation, she established the Corinne Martinez/Eta Chapter Collegiate Advisor Development Endowment.

Ruth Janssen Person (Gettysburg) — Three years of service: Ruth was the recipient of the Sorority's Carnation Award at Convention 2010.

Ruth Seeler, M.D. (Vermont) — 12 years of service: Dr. Ruth is best known for creating and funding a collegiate leadership consultant endowment as well as an endowment for medical students. She also worked closely with Barbara Missert Wessel (Syracuse) to involve more sisters in giving, particularly in the area of unrestricted gifts.

Share your creativity, leadership ability and management skills with the Foundation by serving a three-year term as a volunteer Trustee! To inquire, contact Karen Wander Kline (Iowa State), Governance Committee chairwoman, at kwkl@att.net.

Member Honored for Giving

Those who know her say,

without a doubt,

Mary embodies

this award.

Mary Vanier receives prestigious interfraternal award

By Elizabeth Smith Clark (Southern Methodist), sorority coordinator-research and design

ohn F. Kennedy once said, "One person can make a difference, and everyone should try." One Gamma Phi Beta who makes a difference with her extreme generosity is Mary Vanier (Kansas State). In recognition of many acts of service and giving, she was awarded the 2011 National Interfraternity Conference (NIC) Foundation's Outstanding Philanthropist Award during the organization's annual conference in August.

"Mary's encouragement, leadership and her style of giving - not just donating money or land or things, but giving of herself, her heart and soul to the organizations and causes she embraces - makes her an inspiration and role model for all of us." says Linda Daniel Johnson (Vanderbilt), Gamma Phi Beta Foundation Chairwoman.

The award is reserved for "an individual or family with a proven record of exceptional generosity who, through direct financial support, has demonstrated outstanding fraternal and charitable responsibility, and whose generosity encourages others to take philanthropic leadership roles within the Greek community on a national and/or international level." Those who know her say, without a doubt, Mary embodies this award.

Mary began volunteering for Gamma Phi Beta in 2000 as the chapter advisor for Beta Upsilon Chapter (Kansas State), a role she continues to hold. She also serves on the chapter's house corporation board and is a member of Manhattan Alumnae Chapter. Mary was appointed sorority director - advisor development in 2004 and led efforts to develop the Sorority's award-winning online advisor training program.

GRAND MERE MARY VANIER

Among her many generous acts, Mary donated land for Manhattan's first hospice house, The Good Shepherd Hospice House.

"Mary shares her time, talent and treasures every day, making a positive impact on so many friends and sisters," says Krista Spanninger Davis (Bowling Green State), sorority director-human resources.

"She inspires me to strive to be my best me

In 2005, Mary became a Trustee for the Gamma Phi Beta Foundation, later joining the executive committee as chair of the public relations/marketing committee. She belongs to The 1874 Society and was the lead donor in establishing several endowments, including the KSU/Beta Upsilon Chapter "Celebrating Our Past/Ensuring Our Future" Endowment and the Chapter Advisor Development Endowment.

An innovative and dedicated volunteer leader for Gamma Phi Beta, Mary received the Helen M. Dodge Outstanding Advisor Award in 2006, the International President's Award at Convention 2008 and the Loyalty Award in 2010.

The impact of Mary's altruism extends far beyond Gamma Phi Beta to include her alma mater as well as the Manhattan, Kansas, community. She made significant donations to campus capital improvements, Kansas State Athletics and the Kansas 4-H Foundation. Along with her mother, Mary provided the lead gift for a major addition to St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Manhattan.

Mary is equally generous with her time. She served on the board of directors of the Boys and Girls Club of Manhattan, the Mercy Health Foundation and the Manhattan Area Chamber of Commerce. She was a trustee for both the Kansas 4-H Foundation and the Kansas State Foundation. Additionally, Mary has served on advisory boards for the Kansas State University Center for Basic Cancer Research and the Beach Museum of Art. She is a founding member of the Flint Hills Area Panhellenic Association and the Manhattan Community Foundation, for which she also has served as secretary.

Mary's dedication to both service and giving defies quantification. But her most important consideration in giving is that her contributions have staying power.

"I'm big on establishing things that will hopefully provide support well into the future," she says.

Beloved Member Served Sorority for 37 Years

Audrey Weldon Shafer was Grand President in the 1970s

hile Gamma Phi Beta's circle never ends, we sometimes mourn the loss of one of our greatest links.

Former Grand President Audrey Weldon Shafer (Missouri-Columbia, 1938) has passed away, and her unwavering loyalty and lifetime commitment to Gamma Phi Beta will be dearly missed. She is survived by two Gamma Phi Beta daughters, Alison Shafer Bond and Pamela Shafer Burke (both of Missouri-Columbia).

"Audrey Shafer was a devoted Gamma Phi," says Ann Mullen Bronsing (Indiana State). "When I was Grand President, Audrey was director of ritual, and she could always be counted on to produce inspirational initiations at chapter installations and Conventions. She was a loval friend and we all will miss her."

Audrey retired from 37 years of service as an International Officer for Gamma Phi Beta Sorority in Audrey's loyalty was highlighted in the 2008-09 Annual Report in celebration of her 90th birthday. She is pictured in the bottom row, center.

1998. Most notably, she served as Grand President* from 1970-74, during which time Gamma Phi Beta added four collegiate chapters to its roll. Her Council also began the Transister Service, later renamed SisterLink; developed the chapter education program which has evolved into today's PACE program; and instituted the Carnation

At the Centennial Convention in 1974, sisters honored her years of service by contributing generously to create the Audrey Weldon Shafer Fellowship Endowment through the Gamma Phi Beta Foundation. Annual earnings fund a substantial graduate school fellowship awarded to a deserving alumna.

In addition to her time as Grand President and director of ritual (1986-97), Audrey was Alumnae Vice President (1968-70) and research chairwoman (1978-84). She also represented Gamma Phi Beta at the National Panhellenic Conference and donated often to the Foundation.

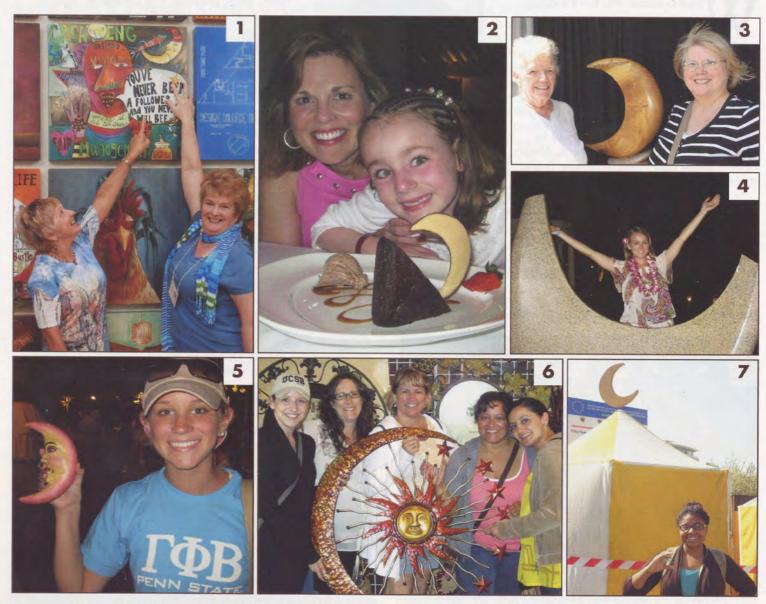

Reflecting on Audrey's contribution to the Sorority, International President Linda Lyons Malony (Southern California) says, "Audrey was a very special lady and an incredible inspiration to so many Gamma Phi Betas. She never spoke an unkind word, and she personally mentored and encouraged me. Her leadership and example leave a lasting legacy throughout our Sorority."

In her first message to the membership published in The Crescent (September 1970), Audrey said: "We must show what sorority life can mean to a sister all of her life, and that membership is as attractive today as it has always been." Audrey not only penned those words, she lived them.

Condolences to the family may be sent to: Pamela Shafer Burke, 6808 Rockhill Rd., Kansas City, MO 64131-1355. Memorial contributions may be made to the Audrey Weldon Shafer Endowment Fund c/o Gamma Phi Beta Foundation, 12737 E. Euclid Dr., Centennial, CO 80111-6437.

*Grand President is now known as International President, the head of International Council.
